SSWSC Murphy Roberts Holiday Classic

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS — After a blazing fast second run in the Murphy Roberts Holiday Classic slalom race, Andrea Komsic sat in the lead with three skiers left to go. The first had a successful run, but it wasn’t enough to top Komsic, leaving two more racers.

Rosie Hust was just a few gates into her run when she missed one and was disqualified.

That left run-one winner Storm Klamhaus. On the steepest part of the hill, she, too, missed a gate, making Komsic the victor and winner of the $4,000 prize on Sunday, Dec. 22.

“I didn’t expect it to happen, but I’m not surprised,” Komsic said of her competition missing a gate. “That happens all the time. It happens to me when I’m the leader in the first round. I usually mess up in the second round because I have too much pressure on me.”

Komsic, a Croatia-born skier for the University of Denver, won with a combined time of 122.83 seconds, with the first one clocking in at 42.27.

She said she was trying to find herself on the first run, but it didn’t work well. The second, she had nothing to lose, so she flew down the hill in 40.66 seconds. Komsic said it didn’t feel like it was fast enough to win the event, though. READ MORE IN THE STEAMBOAT PILOT AND TODAY
